IT strategy management

A complete solution for managing your IT strategy and effectiveness, compliance, risk management and cyber security.

How well do you understand your IT operations?

As your business evolves, the need for IT and computer systems to support it become far greater, typically requiring representation at board level or an experienced Chief Information Officer to oversee and direct the policies and procedures that surround it.

Without the expertise, senior management often lose sight of the strategic advantages that IT can provide and become out-of-touch with the fast-paced development of technology and the complications around regulatory requirements of risk management and cyber security.

To mitigate financial risk to your business ask yourself:
• How secure is our system(s) in today's cyber security landscape?
• Where is our data held and who has access to it?
• How long would it take to recover our IT systems in the event of a disaster, would it be successful and how would we operate in the interim?
• How much do we spend on IT, what are we spending it on and are we getting value for money?
• Is everything documented and compliant should there be a regulatory inspection?
• How can technology successfully facilitate our business growth?
